NEWS SUMMARY.

—Gold closed at 87.
 —In New York cotton closed firm, with sales of 2000 bales at 28 1/2.
 —In Liverpool, on Saturday, uplands closed at 11 1/2, and Orleans at 12 1/2.
 —The rumor of a conspiracy among the coolies to murder and plunder their employers created intense excitement in Honolulu, April 11.

—The Cubans say they intend to initiate their grand activity against the Spaniards when the sickly season begins, which they can assure the foreigners cannot. How do the filibusters like this notion?

—It is stated that after June 1st the charges for cable messages of ten words will be $10 in round, exclusive of address and signature, and one dollar for each additional word, with fifty per cent. discount on press dispatches, except telegraph and commercial news, which will be charged full rates.

—The colored man named Adam Dottle, residing in Mill-street, Savannah, who was dreadfully burned on Saturday night last, by the explosion of a kerosene lamp, is dead. This is the second death which has occurred in that city within the last two months from the use of explosive oil.

—Secretary Fish is preparing the instructions to Minister Motley, which will be forwarded to him before he leaves, on the 19th, for Madrid. There has been a great deal of speculation about the probable tenor of these dispatches, but it is not probable that any one except Secretary Fish, Mr. Motley and Mr. Sumner has any correct idea of what they are to be.

—Very late dispatches, received in Washington, by the government, leave no room to doubt an imminent and widespread revolution in Mexico. There is no reason to believe that our government has any policy in view of anarchy there. Our foreign relations are in such critical condition all around, and the members of the Cabinet so much at variance, that it is not unlikely that the President will call Congress together by the first of August.

—The intelligence lately published to the effect that Dr. Livingston, the great African explorer, had arrived at Zanzibar, is contradicted. His friend, Dr. Murchison, now informs that he has travelled west from the southern end of Lake Tanganyika, finding its waters did not flow northward, following the rivers which issue on the west coast of Africa. Under this supposition he may be first heard of from one of the western Portuguese settlements, or even from those on the Congo.

—The intelligent Havana correspondent of the Journal of Commerce says that a battalion of 1000 regular soldiers, including officers, arrived there on the 24th ult., and that this made a grand total of 18,517 men received there for service from Spain since December 13, 1868. This being all the reinforcements added to the Spanish army in Cuba since the beginning of the revolution, it is evident that it must be a great deal weaker than it was at the outset. The show for the Spaniards is a great deal poorer than was supposed.

—The Russian correspondent of the London Tablet writes: "Our military men assure us that the summer will not pass away without a campaign. They profess to have certain information that the French artillery was never so much so formidable as it is in all its departments. The government seems to have with the officers the expectation of war. Great activity reigns in the arsenals. That of St. Petersburg alone has cast, bored and grooved more than 450 pounders and over 150 pounders, on the new system, at the rate of two a day; and 100 heavy guns have been rifled."

—The commissioner of Internal revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, will shortly issue a circular to the various offices of the revenue department, instructing them relative to income derived from subjects of foreign governments upon capital invested in this country. Chief Justice Chase recently decided upon the circuit, in Baltimore, that the government could not withhold the five per cent. tax from foreign subjects; hence the circular will be issued instructing officers not to collect the same. The amount heretofore collected will be refunded, and aggregate a considerable sum, one claim alone being about $100,000.

—A dispatch was received in Washington on Wednesday by the British minister from the English consul at Havana giving an account of another Spanish outrage on the high seas. According to this dispatch, a Spanish war vessel named an English brig at sea, and the latter refusing to stop, was fired into by the Spaniard and sunk. This is the substance of the dispatch, which Mr. Thornton immediately sent to his government over the cable. As the dispatch is extremely meagre, not stating whether the information respecting the outrage was received originally from the Spanish man-of-war or from some survivors of the sunken brig, the authorities here scarcely know whether to credit it or not.

—The party consisting of ex-Governor Ward, of New Jersey, Colonel Forney, General Van Wyck, of New York, and others, who started on a Southern trip two weeks ago, have returned to Washington. They went as far as Florida, stopping at the principal cities and towns on the way. They all concur in the report that the industrial prospects have improved. They say the negroes are working better this year than last, and the whites generally seem to be more industrious, and the crops look well. The people are anxious for Northern immigration, and millions of acres of good lands are offered to capitalists. The party were everywhere well received, and railroad companies provided special cars on the trains for their accommodation free of charge.

—Of the crop prospects in Georgia, the Augusta Chronicle says: "We regret to learn that the cold weather of the past week has very materially injured the crop prospects in this portion of the State. The cold easterly winds which have prevailed for several days, and the slight frosts of Friday and yesterday morning, have caused the cotton to die out, and on the light sandy lands great fears are felt that the stand will be destroyed. Corn is small and does not look healthy, the cold having given it a yellow, stunted appearance. The stands of this crop are generally good, and with a fair season we may expect a good yield. Wheat and oats have, until within a few days, looked remarkably well. The cold has effected these crops, and if the present cold snap continues many days wheat will be seriously injured."

—The death of Prince Alexander Sergeyevitch Mentschikoff, of Russia, is announced by a telegram. This distinguished prince and soldier was born in 1789, entered the imperial service in 1805, accompanied Alexander I. as aide-de-camp during the campaigns of 1812-14, was subsequently promoted to the rank of General, but resigned in 1823, when the Czar definitively abandoned the cause of the struggling Greeks. Under Nicholas he served as ambassador to Persia, and afterwards took part in the war against that country, captured Asova, but was seriously wounded at Varna, and subsequently devoted himself to the development of the Russian navy. In 1853 he was sent to Constantinople to urge the claims of Nicholas in the affairs of Turkey, but only succeeded in promoting a speedy rupture, the result of which was the Crimean war. He commanded both the land and naval forces in the Crimea, lost the battles of Alma and Inkermann, but distinguished himself by his energy in the defence of Sebastopol. He was superseded in March, 1855, by Gortschakoff, and was appointed by Alexander II. commander of Cronstadt. At the time of his death he was Admiral of the Russian navy.

CHARLESTON.

MONDAY MORNING, MAY 10, 1869.

Northern Men in the South.

Mr. John W. Forney came, saw, and wrote a letter to his two papers—the Washington Chronicle and Philadelphia Press—in which he related his experience of Charleston and South Carolina. With his face glued to a window, he passed through as much of the State as is traversed by the Wilmington and Manchester and Northeastern Railroads, and was able, of course, to familiarize himself with the composition of the soil, the peculiarities of the climate, and the inside and outside nature of the people. Twenty-four hours enabled him to do what his competitors failed to accomplish in three twenty-four years, and, in his own opinion, Forney is now a marvellous person to applaud or abuse the South. With one hand he pats approval of the fertility of the land and the quiet which everywhere prevails. With the other he waves approval of political pickpockets and condemnation of the old slaveholding aristocracy. Bitter and sweet, truth and falsehood, are curiously combined in his Charleston letter. But throughout the whole there is one strain of which he never tires—a lugubrious lament that "the old residents have no 'social intercourse with the Yankees.'"

It would be easy enough to give reasons why there might be an invincible prejudice against strangers, and particularly against strangers like Mr. Forney. There would be no difficulty in showing that a foul-mouthed Radical, who curses and reviles the South until the hope of profitable land speculation bids him cease, can never enter within the portals of an honest Southern home. But this does not touch the root of the question, which is that the whole subject of social and personal intercourse must be regulated by each man for himself, and not by his neighbors or the epistolary Forney. Mr. A. B. or C. has no right to be the personal friend of any man or set of men merely because he was born in this place, or was not born in that. The new comer may be active and enterprising, upright in all his dealings, an excellent person to know on the wharf or in the counting-room, and yet not one with whom his business acquaintances would desire to have their wives and children familiar. It is of little consequence whether his birth-place is in Louisiana or Massachusetts. The man must prove himself or be proved by others, and even then it will depend upon individual tastes whether he will be admitted to that social intercourse which Mr. Forney craves. There are very few Northerners, it is true, who become our familiar friends. This is because of the general worldliness of the Bohemians who seek to overrun the State. The New York Times speaks of "the adventures which have gone into the South," and Harper's Weekly says: "One wonders that the South does not rebel anew when he considers the 'miserable vermin' who have been sent down 'there as government officials,' and the Chicago Tribune, another Radical sheet, denounces 'the carpet-baggers—the strolling, pilfering political blacklegs of the North,' by whom the South is 'ridden and robbed.' And it is these 'adventurers,' these 'vermin,' and these 'black-legs,' whom Mr. Forney would have us clasp to our breasts as fit companions for sister, wife and children. No thank you!

As we said, this is a matter which every man must regulate for himself. Each one should and will choose his own companions and select his own friends. There is free trade in friendship, at least, and the principle here shall be to think of a man as we find him.

And we have no fear that the bugbear of "social exclusiveness" will have any effect in preventing the influx of Northern capital. If a Northern man, or any other man, comes to South Carolina, it is because he sees a chance of making money. Not one will come for the sake of going into "society." It is a plain calculation, a simple question of dollars and cents—as it ought to be. The sweetness of the Southern fire-side will not console the stranger for failing trade and consequent loss of capital. Nor will the absence of this private intimacy rob fortune of its charms. The merchant, the broker or the professional man who immigrates to this State, does so because he believes that he will make more progress here than he could do at home; and he will not, if he has any sense, be deterred from coming by any dread of being barred out from some particular class of "society." As time rolls on the new arrival is understood and appreciated according to his worth, and if he is not, the loss will be to others rather than to himself. When he has become, in fact as well as in name, a part of the State, interested in its progress and concerned in its good government, he will have friends and acquaintances enough, and will have made for himself a "society" which will be all that he needs and all that he desires. Hold out the inducements. Show the cheapness of land and labor. Prove the scarcity of money and the gain to be made by its use. These will bring Northerners and Europeans to the shores of South Carolina—not travellers with carpet-bags, but settlers with trunks, who will be of us and with us, and will have no cause to complain of their reception, notwithstanding the ominous predictions of the disappointed Forney.

The State Militia.

It will be seen by a circular published in another column, that Adjutant-General Moses declares that "no orders have yet been issued looking to the organization of the State militia, or the arming and drilling of the same." There have, undoubtedly, been movements looking to an immediate organization of an armed force of some kind in different localities; but we accept the statement of the Adjutant-General that this was done without authority, and call the attention of all persons to that portion of the militia law which declares that "there shall be no military organizations or 'formations for the purpose of arming, drilling, exercising the manual of arms or military manoeuvres not authorized under this act.'"

We also again express the hope that the active organization of the militia will be postponed for many months to come. It is not necessary for any public purpose, and can do no good, while it must cause grave alarm and may lead to serious riot and disorder.

The Clarendon press complains that the Charleston papers published on Saturdays never reach that place. The fault is not with us, as the News is mailed with the regularity of clock-work. We hope that Postmaster Trot will give an eye to this matter.
